DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 11/29/2004 has been entered.

Response to Amendment

2. Claims 1-33 as amended are still in consideration for this application.

3. Examiner does not withdraw the anticipated rejections to Sugita and Easton for Office action filed 05/28/04. Upon further reconsideration, the examiner notes the timing/counters will always be arbitrary based on the clock since the clock is never 100 percent accurate. As such, the reading and writing which are based on the timers/counter are arbitrary since they are based on the clock. Both references further support discontinuous transmission within a code period.

Applicant is correct that both references do not teach claim 12. As such, claim 12 is considered allowable.

Since applicant paid for a continuation, the following Office action is made non-final.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 2663

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 1-11, 15-26 and 27-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by EP 0744840 A2 to Sony Corporation ("Sony") (cited in prior IDS as JP H8-321804).

As to claim 1, see figure 5 with respect to a PN code generator 62 and register(s).

Although Sony teaches generating a long PN code, the technique taught is still the same for the claim recitation. For example, with respect to a storing means, code generation means, and control means see e.g., column 9, lines 23-44. Specifically, examiner notes a reasonable but broad interpretation of "arbitrary timing".

As to claim 2, see similar rejection for claim 1.

As to claims 3-11, see Section (3) Structure of Timing Controller and specifically column 9 in reference to figures 5, 7, and 8.

As to claims 15-16, see similar rejection for claim 1.

As to claims 17-20, see Section (3) Structure of Timing Controller and specifically column 9 in reference to figures 5, 7, and 8.

As to claims 21-22, see similar rejection for claim 1.

As to claims 23-26, see Section (3) Structure of Timing Controller and specifically column 9 in reference to figures 5, 7, and 8.

As to claims 27-33, see e.g., column 9, lines 23-42.

6. Claims 1-6, 11, 15-26 and 27-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,590,886 B1 to Easton et al. ("Easton").

Art Unit: 2663

As such to claim 1, for step (a) Easton discloses a method and circuit for reducing the amount of time a mobile station spends in the active phase of a slot in a communications system utilizing a slotted paging mechanism, see e.g., column 3, lines 35-55. In particular, note the difference of the prior art shown in figure 2 in comparison with Easton's invention in figure 3. Specifically, Easton's invention uses "arbitrary timing" since the values for determining the wake period (and thus the reading and writing) are determined by the previous environment since the multipath environment may change when the mobile "wakes up", see e.g., column 3, lines 23-32 and column 6, lines 43-60. Although a receiver is shown in figure 1 a transmitter is simply the reverse of the receiver.

As to claim 2, see similar rejection to claim 1.

As to claims 3-6, see e.g., figure 3.

As to claims 11 and 12, see combined rejection to claims 1 and 2.

As to claims 15, see similar rejection to claim 1.

As to claims 16, see similar rejection to claim 2.

As to claims 17-20, see similar rejection to claims 3-6 respectfully.

As to claims 21, see similar rejection to claim 1.

As to claims 22, see similar rejection to claim 2.

As to claims 23-26, see similar rejection to claims 3-6 respectfully.

As to claims 27-33, the startup time is different since the offset may change when the mobile wakes up, see e.g., column 6, lines 42-60.

Art Unit: 2663

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 13-14 are allowable.
8. Claim 12 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
